On the Trail Capital Flight from Africa: The Takers and the Enablers

This paper investigates the dynamics of capital flight from Angola, Côte d'Ivoire, and South Africa, countries that have witnessed large-scale illicit financial outflows in recent decades. Quantitative, qualitative, and institutional analysis for each country is used to examine the modus operandi of capital flight; that is, the 'who', 'how', and 'where' dimensions of the phenomenon. 'Who' refers to major domestic and foreign players; 'how' refers to mechanisms of capital acquisition, transfer, and concealment; and 'where' refers to the destinations of capital flight and the transactions involved.

Keynote 2, Space 30
Samantha Vice
University of the Witwatersrand

Iris Murdoch in South Africa: Attention and Racial Privilege

The view that racially privileged people need to undertake self-directed inner work as one aspect of recognizing injustice has been criticised as self-indulgent and morally and politically ineffectual. I explore and respond to these criticisms by drawing on Iris Murdoch and recent philosophical work on attention.

Plenary 1, Space 30
Samuel Obeng
University of Warwick

Rewarding Allegiance? Political Alignment and Local Governments (with Christa Brunnschweiler)

We examine how local governments' political alignment with central governments affects subnational fiscal outcomes and public service provision. In theory, alignment could be rewarded with more intergovernmental transfers, or swing voters in unaligned constituencies could be targeted instead. We find evidence of politically motivated fiscal outcomes and public service provision.

Plenary 2, Space 30
Frank Abumere
The Abuja School of Social and Political Thought

The Empire Writes Back to the Metropolis

The paper re-conceptualizes the traditional relational approach to global justice into a postcolonial relational approach in order to allow us to know what former colonial states owe their former colonies and why the former owe the latter what they owe them in the context of migration from the latter to the former.
